

(...)

Two bumbling criminals were caught trying to rob a bank thanks to this CCTV footage, but there's something slightly odd about their tactics. The would-be thieves attempted to avoid being detected by the bank's security systems by covering themselves with aluminium foil. Surprisingly, the crackpot scheme worked, but didn't protect them from the CCTV cameras. The hapless perpetrators of the early Saturday morning raid on the Banco do Brazil branch in Praia Grande fled empty handed after security personnel saw them on the surveillance screens and called the police. "They wanted to make sure the alarms didn't detect their presence by using the aluminium foil," a spokesman for the Santa Catarina state's military police told Brazilian national newspaper.

27 What is the best headline for this article?

- 1 Bank robbers cover in aluminium not to be detected.
- 2 Two thieves hide in foil not to be seen.
- 3 Brazil bank robbed by two robbers.
- 4 CCTV cameras help reveal the identity of two thieves.

Drunken Capuchin

A small capuchin has been detained by fire officials after drinking from glasses containing rum and running with a kitchen knife at a bar. The angry monkey caused havoc in Paraiba, Brazil, after drinking the dregs from glasses standing around the premises. It then went on a drunken rampage after finding a kitchen knife. According to firemen, the capuchin was acting aggressively towards male patrons in the bar and "chasing" people before it started stabbing the roof of the establishment with the sharp object. "It was a bar staff mistake that ended with the monkey drinking some rum and taking the knife," fire department Lt Col Saul Laurentino told. The monkey was caught by the local fire department and later released back into the wild. However, officials said the monkey began scaring local families and children so had to be caught again.

28 What happened with the monkey after it was caught by the firemen?

- 1 It ran around the bar with a kitchen knife.
- 2 It was chasing people in the bar.
- 3 It drank all rum in the bar.
- 4 It went back into the nature.

Give your lover a potato

With Valentine's Day fast approaching, it can be difficult to think of the perfect gift to convey to your other half just how much you love them. Flowers and chocolates are nice, but a little bit cliché. Then there are these gift choices such as chocolate and lacy lingerie. But what about for those whose tastes are a little bit different? Luckily for you, the folks at Mystery Potato have brainstormed long and hard to devise the ultimate in Valentine's Day giftware. They want you to send your lover a potato this Valentine's Day, complete with a personalised message written in marker pen—because "nothing says 'I love you' like a potato". Why would someone even do this, you ask? Well, as the website puts it: "Potatoes are simple and they bring joy and confusion like you would not believe".

29 What message is delivered on the new gift?

- 1 Chocolate and lingerie are the best.
- 2 It says "I love you like a potato".
- 3 "Potatoes are not complicated and bring joy."
- 4 A message with initials written in pen.